

The KOFY Chronicle Issue 2

Hello again dear Patrons and welcome to the second edition of the KOFY Chronicle.

I can't believe it's October already, the months seems to be flying by, and although we got a little blindsided by illnesses and world events for a while, we finally feel like we're catching up with ourselves again, and we're excited about all the spooky goodness we've got lined up over the next few months.

First up we should have a shiny new episode ready for you within the week, and this time we're talking to popular paranormal web series Haunt Me.

We've been watching their show on Youtube for a few years now, initially we were impressed by their attitude, and the respect for both locations and spirits alike that was evident in their investigation style. It made a refreshing change from the wave of paranormal TV programmes showing people rampaging through dark buildings, deliberately being antagonistic and all too ready to call everything a demon.

We enjoyed the fact that Haunt me treated each location as unique, and tailored their investigations to reflect the individuality and history of each place, and we grew more and more intrigued by their use of intuitive and even metaphysical techniques as part of their investigations

As investigators in the public eye, we feel they break the mold, and we love to see investigators pushing the boundaries of the field as we know it, so we were very excited for this interview, and they definitely did not disappoint, just wait until you hear what they had to say about our 'Stranger Things' radio experiments!

It's going to be a rather odd October this year. Normally this would be the time we're tearing around fitting in visits and events and even investigations, not to mention just enjoying the seasonal theme in the shops and stocking up on spooky sparklies and homeware!

This year our podcast birthday will be a little more of a sedate affair with all the upheaval and uncertainty of the moment. It will also be tinged with sadness, as this time last year we had already, very unexpectedly, lost one of our beautiful, precious cats, and we were about to lost two more in brutally quick succession. We were caring for their illnesses 24/7 and it was one of the toughest things we've ever had to deal with.

But if you're a long-time listener you'll know that we always treat October as the season of remembrance, so perhaps it is fitting that all of this is in our thoughts and hearts right now. We will certainly be doing another Remembrance thread in the facebook group this Halloween and we would invite you all to join in with any remembrances you would like to share

As the nights draw in and the days grow shorter, we begin to look inwards and reflect upon the year, and although it's been a difficult one there is still a lot to celebrate.

This October we will be celebrating 4 years in podcasting! I can honestly say that 4 years ago I never thought we'd still be doing this and loving every minute of it. We've come on an intense and fascinating journey and all of this is thanks to you – our fantastic, incredible patrons. It is down to you that we can continue on this weird and wonderful paranormal adventure and we want thank you, from the bottom of our hearts, for making this possible.

I always find the Autumn months kickstart my inspiration and right now I'm brimming with ideas for the future. We've got a fun-packed Halloween episode lined up and we're hoping to complete a couple of ideas we have for bonus patreon content, so watch this space!

We've also had an idea to take our radio experiment up a notch and have already got the supplies we need to get going with it, I wonder if any of you can guess what we're planning. Now we're just waiting for the rain to dry up so we can get outside to do some painting!

We do hope you're all well and enjoying the spooky season as best you can, take care and you'll hear from us soon.

Lil X
